

Modern slavery: Get ready now

New Modern Slavery laws are now in place and you may be legally required to submit an annual modern slavery statement.

WHY?

As part of a global movement to eradicate modern slavery, the Federal Government requires many profit making entities to prove effort has been taken to reduce or remove modern slavery within their operations and supply chains.

WHO IS AFFECTED?

Entities with an annual revenue of AU$100 million plus per financial year. Entities include:

- individuals
- body corporates
- body politics
- partnerships
- unincorporated associations or body of persons
- trusts
- superannuation funds
- deposit funds

YOUR STATEMENT

- The reporting period is the first Australian or international financial year after 1 January 2019
- Statements were due to be submitted within six months after this date, however following disruptions due to COVID-19 the deadline has been extended by three months

NEW LAWS FOR NSW

NSW also took action against modern slavery by introducing new laws, however these laws have been tabled and are unlikely to commence in its current form. If commenced, this will be the first statutory scheme globally to apply penalties for non-reporting. As it stands, you do not need to submit a statement under the NSW Act if already submitting one under the Federal Act. Further monitoring is required.

THE NUMBERS

40.3 million

At any given time in 2016, an estimated 40.3 million people are in modern slavery, including 24.9 million in forced labour and 15.4 million in forced marriage.¹

It means there are 5.4 victims of modern slavery for every 1,000 people in the world.¹

1 in 4 victims of modern slavery are children.¹

Women and girls are disproportionately affected by forced labour, accounting for 99% of victims in the commercial sex industry, and 58% in other sectors.¹

24.9 million

 people trapped in forced labour:

16 million are exploited in the private sector such as domestic work, construction or agriculture.¹

4.8 million in forced sexual exploitation.¹

4 million in forced labour imposed by state authorities.¹

Annual profits in Australia generated by forced labour estimated to be:

$12 billion USD²

¹Source: Global Estimates of Modern Slavery: Forced Labour and Forced Marriage, Geneva, September 2017 <http://www.ilo.org/global/topics/forced-labour/lang--en/index.htm>

²Global Slavery Index 2018

MODERN SLAVERY: GET READY NOW

Allocate resources and set up an internal multi-disciplinary team who will be responsible for modern slavery reporting and compliance. Engage senior management, executive and the Board

Map and assess existing (and any upcoming) operations and supply chains to assess where the modern slavery risks lie

Consider engaging a Human Rights expert or non-government organisation to assist in tackling supply chain issues (including how to handle complaints and corrective actions if modern slavery practices are uncovered)

Revise current supplier terms and policies and current employee codes of conduct and policies to cover these new obligations

Provide training to employees on modern slavery risks

Create due diligence frameworks to continually monitor risk both internally and within the supply chains already mapped

Look for markers of modern slavery, e.g. unlawful withholding of wages or identity/travel documents or lacking appropriate clothing or safety equipment for work

Increase supplier awareness and engagement to ensure that supply chain participants are aware of these new obligations, and encourage ongoing communication and collaboration on tackling modern slavery issues that may arise

GET IN TOUCH

Speak to one of our specialist lawyers about preparing for these new laws.

SAMANTHA DALY
Partner

T +61 2 8274 9524
M +61 405 260 945
samantha.daly@jws.com.au

RUVENI KELLEHER
Partner

T +61 2 8274 9591
M +61 402 891 428
ruveni.kelleher@jws.com.au